

ADVANCED ADMISSION TO SCHOOL COUNSELING, M.ED.

The School of Education offers select undergraduate students at Georgian Court University the opportunity to apply for admission to the traditional M.Ed. in School Counseling program after completing 75 credits.

For acceptance, students:

- must have completed 75 credits and must be registered for at least 15 more credits;
- have an overall GCU GPA of at least 3.0;
- complete an Advanced Admission to the M.Ed. in School Counseling Application;
- complete an interview with the M.Ed. in School Counseling Program Director.

Students meeting the above criteria may be accepted into this pathway program and may take up to four master's level courses (12 credits) upon completing 90 undergraduate credits; that is, while they are still undergraduate students in their senior year. Acceptance into the M.Ed. program is assured for the students in the pathway, but acceptance is deferred until the undergraduate degree is conferred. This pathway program requires students to complete all the undergraduate and graduate degree requirements and maintain a minimum GPA of 3.0.
